A Few Things...

Easter is approaching

Some of you participate in Lent. Others of you simply look forward to the Spring. As Christians, all of us should allow Easter to hold a significant place in our minds. May I make a suggestion? Consider reaching out to those around you to make sure they know they are welcome to come to our worship gatherings as Easter approaches. Beginning to think about this now will avoid the “Easter is next week!” rush.

Being intentional

Some of you want to grow in your walk with the Lord. Some of you should be leading others right now, but don’t feel equipped or able. Some of you have burdens that you have not allowed anyone else to carry or share with you. For any of you, here is an offer: call one of your pastors. In God’s design of the church, our function as pastors is to equip and prepare the saints for a life lived unto the Lord. Whether you want to grow deeper in knowledge and ability to lead, or whether you simply need someone to help you carry spiritual burdens in prayer, please call your pastors.

Thanking those who serve

As I prepared for this weekend, I began thinking about all of the people who serve this fellowship of believers in some way. So many people build into their week some kind of service to the church family. Cleaning, organizing, planning, preparing music or classrooms, praying, studying, visiting. As you see people doing routine or behind the scenes things, take a moment to thank them. They are a gift to God’s people.
